Soda Water Establishment

Noel Pelecan,

HAS the pleasure of announcing to the Ladies and Gentlemen of the Town of Newport and its vicinity, that they may be constantly supplied at his Store, No 100 Thames-Street, Newport, with the first quality SODA WATER, commencing on [illegible] day, the 11th instant, manufactured by JOSEPH CAHN, upon the most correct chemical principles. The beneficial effects of this salubrious Water, have, for the last two years greatly augmented the demand for it; which at the same time through want of care and proper attention and a variety of circumstances, its value has been depreciating in the town. The experience of mankind has established the extensive utility of SODA WATER. The Proprietor having the most convenient accommodation for Ladies and Gentlemen, he flatters himself that he shall receive a due share of public support to enable him to prosecute, with success, his establishment.
This pungent and acidulated Water has been directed by Medical men and is well known to produce desirable effects, in many common and troublesome complaints, it is a complete remedy against sourness of the stomach, commonly called heart burn, and in cases of indigestion and weakness of the stomach, it is found very useful, gradually restoring the appetite and with it the tone of the organs; it is a preventative of many of the diseases of the stomach and bowels which proceed from acidity; and for the same reasons it in most cases removes or prevents the sick head ache; it has proved advantageous in the gout as those who have taken the Water for the gravel, have been cured of both diseases, by means of SODA.—It may be taken to the quantity of a pint, or more daily, at three stated periods, morning, noon, and night one hour previously to the several meals of the day. In addition to its Medicinal qualities, it is a very refreshing and wholesome drink especially after heat and fatigue, and may be made a complete substitute for beverage of a deliterious nature; with Wines and Sugar, it is very grateful.

Laws of Rhode-Island.

Robinson & Howland,

PROPOSE to publish a complete Digest of the public Laws of Rhode-Island, containing all the Laws, not repealed, on the Digest published by order of the General Assembly, in 1798, all the laws to the Supplement published in 1810, and all the public Laws enacted since that time, including also the Laws which will be enacted, at the session of the General Assembly, which will commence the third Monday of the present month, the whole to be revised and corrected under the direction of a gentleman of the Bar, of this town.—The Subscribers are fully aware of the great responsibility they will incur, by undertaking the above work, not only as it regards the labour and expence which will necessarily attend it—but also, as it respects the correctness in the execution;—they flatter themselves however, they will be able to make it worthy the public attention and patronage. It must be obvious to every one that a re-publication of the Laws of this State is almost absolutely necessary at this time. The edition which was published in 1798, is now entirely out of print; not a single copy is to be found in any Book-Store in this town, or, (as it is believed) in any other Book-Store in the State; in addition to this a large proportion of the Laws which were published in the first Digest have since been repealed or altered in such a manner that that edition has become of comparative small value. Every one must be sensible that it is necessary to keep a correct copy of the Laws, if they mean to keep any, as they otherwise they might fall into mistakes, the consequence of which would cost them more, perhaps, than the value of a hundred copies;—Moreover it is to be presumed, that there is no citizen in this State, who, feeling the value of liberty and property, would willingly remain in ignorance of those laws which secure to him such blessings; and more especially when he must know that it is an established maxim, that "ignorance of the law is no excuse for its violation." But there is another great advantage which will result from the publication of this work, it will be afforded at so cheap a rate, that almost every citizen in the State, whether merchant, farmer or mechanic, will be able to furnish himself with a copy—and, perhaps, by that means avoid many a long and tedious law-suit, which otherwise his ignorance might lead him into. In fact, there are so many advantages that will result from the publication of the work, in every point of view, that the subscribers cannot but flatter themselves that by deserving they will meet with sufficient encouragement (without which they assure the public they cannot proceed) to enable them to carry the plan into effect.

CONDITIONS.

The Work will be published in one large Octavo Volume, containing about 900 pages including a copious index.

The Work will be afforded to Subscribers at Three Dollars, bound, payable on delivery and shall be put to press as soon as a sufficient patronage can be obtained.

WASHINGTON, June 24.

[illegible] the Chesapeake, [illegible]

[illegible] have been received.—The [illegible] militia [illegible] with some of the [illegible] of the British, one of whom [illegible] the rest escaping to their vessels. On our side, we lost Francis Wise, of the Alexandria troop, who was killed by a musquet-ball, and had one or two others wounded. Wise was killed by a British serjeant of marines, of prodigious courage and strength. We fought until he was killed by repeated rounds; having before he was [illegible], wounded another trooper, and very nearly overpowered Gen. Stewart, who engaged him after Wise was killed. A militia was then formed within 600 yards of the town; but the British having all embarked in their [illegible], out of our reach, and the brig and barges keeping up a brisk fire; Gen. Stewart gave orders for the whole to retreat, which we did in good order, and re-occupied the heights. Not one of the shot, which fell all around us, touched a man or horse. The next day, on reconnoitering it was found, that the British had left Benedict; and returned to their squadron which is watching Barney's flotilla.

June 25.

Six British marines, made prisoners at Benedict on Tuesday last, by our District Dragoons, were escorted to this city yesterday in a coach, and committed to the custody of the marshal.

We learn from a very respectable private source, and one which may be relied on, that the report lately received from Georgia, respecting the probable commencement of hostilities by the Creek Indians, is not correct. The terrible chastisement which the madness and obstinacy of those unfortunate beings made it necessary to inflict upon them, has, it is believed, destroyed the disposition as well as the power of again disturbing the tranquility of our southern border. We are informed that the hostile warriors have almost unanimously delivered themselves up and asked for peace. The Seminoles is the only tribe of the Creek confederacy which now possesses much military strength; they resisted the solicitations of their countrymen to join in the late war, and having remained neutral during the existence of hostilities, they merely now meditate any hostile act, after witnessing the sufferings of their neighbors.—Intelligencer.

GEORGETOWN, June 24.

FROM THE PATUXENT.

We are informed by a gentleman from the seat of war in the Patuxent, that a British scouting party consisting of a serjeant of marines, and seven seamen, was surprised in the neighborhood of Benedict by a small party of troopers belonging to this district. On the approach of our men 5 seamen surrendered, and two escaped, but the serjeant, determined on resistance, discharged his musquet with fatal aim at the nearest horseman, who was killed instantly. With the next that approached, he maintained a contest and wounded his opponent in the hand, and injured his horse, but lost his bayonet in the scuffle. A third horseman coming up received a severe blow from the musket of the serjeant, who gained time to escape over a fence, but was followed by the horseman, who dismounted and overtook him in the marsh. Here a desperate combat ensued, and the Briton fell after receiving several wounds, the last of which nearly severed his head from his body. The trooper, Mr. Thompson of the Georgetown Hussars, was very much bruised by the several blows of his desperate antagonist, who would neither solicit nor receive quarter. Mr. Wise, who was slain, was a member of the Alexandria Dragoons. He was buried at Benedict with the honors of war, which were also bestowed on the remains of the victim of rash valor. This desperate little skirmish took place on Tuesday. The British evacuated Benedict on the same evening, but their vessels were still in sight of Benedict, when our informant came away yesterday. The account we have given of the destruction of property in Benedict is confirmed. Scarcely a building escaped without injury.

For the distance of 40 or 50 miles up the Patuxent, the people are driven almost to a state of paucity by their dangers, their sufferings and helpless condition.

MARYLAND.

BALTIMORE, JUNE 23.—The Secretary of War has authorized the organization of a volunteer corps of artillerists to co-operate with Barney's flotilla, now cooped up in St. Leonard's creek.

JUNE 24. On democratic authority it is asserted, that the British have taken nearly 4000 hogsheads of tobacco, estimated to be worth 250,000 dollars, during their excursion up the Patuxent; where Com. Barney led them. It was [illegible] owned at Baltimore.

NEW-YORK.

NEW-YORK, JUNE 27.

The Steam-boat Car of Neptune, Beaubien, which arrived here yesterday from Albany, brought no news of importance from the Canadian Frontier. Our troops were concentrating at Buffaloe. Com. Chauncey's squadron, at Sackett's Harbor, were waiting for seamen, who are on their way from Eastern ports. As soon as the seamen arrived, the squadron would sail.

The following was endorsed on a letter dated at the Harbor on the 21st instant:

"One of our gun-boats has just come in with a captain and 18 prisoners, taken on board a British gun-boat, with an 18 pounder."

FROM LAKE ERIE.

"BATH, JUNE 17. Col. Campbell, the plunderer of Dover, has embarked on board the Porcupine and Somers, with a body of men for Buffaloe."

The Tigress, S. M. Champlin, yesterday arrived here from Detroit. Mr. C. learnt at Detroit that nearly 2000 hostile Indians had collected at Saguaan, on Lake Huron, about 120 miles from Detroit.

LAKE CHAMPLAIN.

PLATTSBURG, JUNE 18. Commodore Macdonogh's squadron is in the vicinity of the boundary line—near which some of the British look-out launches have appeared, and returned. The British are said to be fortifying Ash Island, a few miles within the Canada border.

WARLIKE MOVEMENTS.

PLATTSBURG, JUNE 18. General Smith's brigade is at the line. The British post at Le Colle (Wilkinson's famous mill) has been reinforced with a thousand men.

BURLINGTON, JUNE 24. General Izard's army (16 regiments) still remains near the lines at Champlain.—His advanced guard under Major Forsyth, consisting of about 60 men, had a brush with the British pickets of 200 men. Our loss was three killed and five wounded. That of the British not known.

BOSTON, JUNE 30.

RETALIATORY SYSTEM.

We are assured, that the Marshal of this district has received orders from the Administration in Washington, to liberate all the British hostages which have been confined in Marblehead; that he has promptly executed the order, and that they will depart in a cartel for Halifax in a few days. We now believe, that the Retaliatory System is brought to a conclusion; and if that has been any bar to negotiation in Europe, it is now removed. It is now also stated, that the twenty-three persons whom Sir George Prevost originally sent to Europe as traitors, (and of whom Mr Munroe, in a communication made to Congress, acknowledges, that there is no evidence in his department, whether they are native citizens, or were ever naturalized in the United States) are to be restored to the ordinary state of prisoners of war. We know not the authority on which this last assertion rests; but the recent accounts from England do not corroborate it.

Negotiation with England.

No intelligence has yet reached us from Washington of the nature of the despatches from Messrs. Gallatin and Bayard which were brought by the gentlemen who arrived here last week from England, via Halifax.

The public mind being much agitated by the reports of a negotiation of Peace with England, we have made very particular inquiries on the subject; and have had access to the latest letters, from authentic sources, in London; extracts from which we have made. The public may be able to make proper calculations on the prospects they present. They follow:—

"LONDON MAY 13. The British Commissioners to meet the American are not yet publicly known. The general opinion here is, that the Administration would be glad to make the Americans experience more of the evils of war, before they concluded a negotiation. You may see by the inclosed, what they think of the matter at Liverpool. [The inclosure is a circular from Liverpool; in which the writers are decidedly of opinion that no Peace could be concluded with America.] You will tell your countrymen to take care of their ships and haul them up into the country out of the way. If 10,000 of Wellington's men go, they may do a vast deal of mischief on the coast.

Mr. Hamilton and Dr. Arnold are not two of the English Commissioners as first reported. It is now said, that Ad. Gambier, Dr. William Adams, and the under Secretary of the Colonial department, name not recollected [said to be Mr. Smith] will be the three Commissioners. It is most probable the place of negotiation will be Gottenburg; but the two American Commissioners here do not know.

"LONDON, MAY 14. Lord Castlereagh [illegible] and Gambier are [illegible] to negotiate here. Mr. G. says he shall not despair of making a Peace. He can but get Sixty of the administration. Messrs. Clay and Russell (lower Messrs. B. and G. that they are in doubt whether their government will allow them to come to England."

The War in Maine.

We have received the following note from an intelligent and responsible correspondent—dated

"Warren, June 22, 1814.

"Last Night four barges, containing about 180 British came up this river—set fire to a sloop, which was afterwards extinguished; took possession of the United States fort (on the borders of Thomaston and St. George about 12 or 15 miles from the sea) which had only one old man for a garrison! set fire to the powder, spiked the cannon, and then retired, taking two sloops and two schooners, all loaded with lime and lumber. They inquired after some valuable vessels, which are higher up the river; but the fog and approach of daylight saved them—they are now out of danger. Several militia companies have been ordered out, as our paid troops have all been marched off to take Canada; and we are left to defend ourselves, after having paid government for our general defence. During the Rendezvous, this fort had a garrison in it, to keep our own citizens in awe, and from going to sea! If the garrison had been continued, the British would not probably have ventured with a handful of sailors and marines to have made the attempts they have. Such monstrous neglect of defence by the government who have sworn to provide for the "general defence and common safety," makes even democrats scold."

LATEST FROM HALIFAX.

Advices from Halifax to the 22d inst. were received yesterday.

There had not been any arrival from England later than the Packet; and no prizes had recently been sent in. Several Swedish, Spanish, and Portuguese vessels bound to the United States had put in there:—And the petition which had been presented by them for permission to proceed to their destined ports had been rejected. We understand it to be the opinion of men in office, in Halifax, that our Envoys will not effect a peace, for some time.

A government paper printed in Quebec, says, "Peace between Great-Britain and the United States cannot be far distant." Yet this same paper, or one of kindred alliance, says, "the question of the boundaries between the United States, the Canadas, &c. will be discussed by the negotiators in Europe." If so—what prospect can there exist of a speedy pacification?—Our Envoys are not—we think—authorized to discuss this point—and they must wait instructions from the United States before they can discuss it.

MONTREAL PAPERS,

Of the 18th, received yesterday, state that the British Col. McDowall had arrived at Michilimackinac (Lake Huron) with 24 batteaux laden with ordnance, stores, &c. and a detachment of troops and seamen;—that this important post had been placed in the most formidable state of defence; and that a large body of Indians had arrived there and received their presents.—This article, must excite concern for the events in that quarter.

It is added, that Com. Yeo was taking in stores at Kingston, for Niagara.—A Quebec paper of the 14th says, Capt Downie will take temporary command of the Lake fleet, Com. Yeo being out of health.

MEASURES OF DEFENCE.

In execution of a late resolve of the General Court, His Excellency the Commander in Chief has ordered several corps of the militia of this Commonwealth for monthly commands. In this town a regiment has been detached; and, we learn, is ready for service. It is commanded by Col. Osgood. The battalions by Majors S. Curtis and Hudson. It is expected they will do duty at Fort Warren.

The President has issued a proclamation offering a pardon to all army deserters who shall voluntarily return previous to the 17th of September next; and the Secretary at war has offered 50 dollars reward for every one who shall be brought back; and has cautioned citizens against enticing soldiers to desert, the punishment being fine and imprisonment.

RHODE-ISLAND.

PROVIDENCE, JULY 1.

TOWN-MEETING

On Wednesday last the citizens of this town convened, for the purpose of deliberating and deciding, on the propriety of recommending to the Town-Council, the removal of the shipping in our harbour. A resolution passed, by a large majority, recommending to the Council the adoption of this measure, conformably to the powers vested in them by a late Act of the General Assembly.

GEN. HENRY LEE.

We are happy to learn, by the follow- [illegible] of our brethren [illegible] opinion will be, that we shall have a speedy peace. We also differ in opinion from some of them as regards the disposition of Great Britain to make peace with the United States, upon reasonable terms; we do not mean to say, that it will be either her inclination or her interest to agree to a peace, which will allow us to prevent her subjects from American citizens, and thereby exempt them from all her claims to their services; nor yet that she will accede to our philosophical system of free ships making free goods; nor do we think that without some consideration she will grant to us a trade to her East-India possessions. We believe that the two first points will not be contended for by our administration; and with respect to the last, it will depend upon the influence which the East-India Company has in the British cabinet; the trade is not so very important to us, as to induce a protraction of the war for that alone. Nevertheless it is the interest of Great-Britain to make peace with us.

The Bonaparte dynasty is no more; the Bourbons are restored; and Great-Britain is at peace with all the world except America.—The experience of the last twenty years has demonstrated the insecurity of political friendships, and has exhibited nations in the same year friends and enemies; Great-Britain has been alternately united with, and opposed to the continent of Europe; and who is there that can say, the latter may not happen again in the course of a year? It is certainly her interest to be prepared for such an event, and to be able to meet it in the best manner possible, and not to be embarrassed by a war with the United States. It is said that Great-Britain is a commercial nation, and aims at a monopoly of the commerce of all the world; without intending to controvert this assertion, or rather admitting it to be true, we do not think her interest will be promoted by continuing the war with a view of destroying us as a commercial rival, supposing it to be a matter of calculation, and also supposing that Great Britain could succeed in her design, it is our opinion that she would lose more than she would gain. If she could succeed in destroying our commerce, it would follow that all her commercial intercourse with us would be destroyed. The importance of that intercourse has been often shewn to the world; the consequence of such a system, as it is suggested she will be disposed to pursue, will be, to force America into habits, which she cannot afterwards change, without great loss and inconvenience; the enterprize, the skill and industry of the American people are not surpassed by those of any nation; a few years war of the sort contemplated, would call forth the energies of the nation, to an extent that we ourselves are not sensible they can reach; the commercial intercourse between the two nations would forever cease, at least all that part of it which is valuable to Great-Britain. The loss to her would not end here; her own commerce would suffer extremely, in spite of her great maritime force: the naval prowess of Americans has been demonstrated in a way that requires no argument to prove it. As soon as the people of this country should become sensible, that the war was prosecuted upon the principles supposed, there would be a different sentiment than what we now see; the people from necessity would place the government in other hands. All New-England would be roused, and notwithstanding the large military force which might be sent from Great-Britain, she would be made sensible that her North-American colonies were not very safe, or if they should be, that, what with the expense of making them so, the loss of our commerce, and the certain injury we should do to hers, she was engaged in rather an unprofitable contest. With nations, as well as individuals, it is a good rule to let no quarrel go to that extent which would make it irreconcilable; a war waged with the avowed object of driving us from the ocean would produce a spirit of resentment which no time or circumstance could abate; this certainly could not be the interest of Great-Britain. The reluctance with which she went into the war, and her attempt, after the repeal of the orders in council, to negotiate a peace, and again her recent overtures are evidences that she wishes peace with us; the state of the world has certainly greatly changed; but can Britain be unacquainted with the instability of all human affairs? Three months have not passed away since the conqueror, whose arms shook the throne of all the old dynasties of Europe, was driven a fugitive from his own capital, and now lives an exile, a pensioner upon the bounty of those who had scarcely a name among princes.

When the commerce of America was at its most flourishing extent, the advantages which England derived from it were greatest. Every merchant of experience knows that more than three fourths of the amount of the proceeds of all shipments made from the United States to the continent of Europe, were remitted in bills of exchange to England. This fact shows that we made

RHODE-ISLAND LEGISLATURE.

The Hon. General Assembly of this State closed its June session on Saturday last. It gives us great pleasure to state, that the legislature (with an unanimity that does them great honor) have ordered very extensive and additional measures for the defence of our shores from invasion. Among the acts passed was the following:

An Act providing for the Defence of the State.

SEC. 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly, and by the authority thereof it is enacted, That his Excellency the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Council of War, be and he is hereby authorized and requested to order into immediate service, according to the provisions of the Constitution and of the laws of the United States, such portion of the Militia and Chartered Companies of this State, as he may think necessary for the defence of the exposed parts thereof.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That his Excellency the Governor may draft or detach the said Militia and Chartered Companies as he may think expedient, and that any private soldier of the Militia, drafted or detached, may furnish an able-bodied man as a substitute.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted That each and every non-commissioned officer and private soldier shall receive two dollars per month out of the General Treasury, in addition to the pay allowed by the United States.

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That his Excellency the Governor be, and he is hereby requested to cause the drafted or detached Militia and Chartered Companies to be relieved as often as the nature of the service will permit.

SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That all process for the recovery of debts or taxes against the non commissioned officers and private soldiers drafted or detached as aforesaid, shall be staid during the time they are in service.

SEC. 6 And be it further enacted, That his Excellency the Governor be authorized and empowered to raise a State Corps and to appoint officers therefor, as soon as the President of the United States consents to receive them into service for the defence of this State; and that the officers, appointed as aforesaid, be commissioned by his Excellency the Governor in the usual manner.

SEC. 7. And be it further enacted, That his Excellency the Governor and Council of War be authorized and requested to furnish to the towns most exposed, such ordnance, on travelling carriages, and such equipments and ammunition as they shall think proper, and to furnish the militia with tumbrils for transporting their ammunition.

SEC. 8. And be it further enacted, That his Excellency the Governor be authorized to draw on the General Treasury for any sum not exceeding Ten Thousand Dollars, for the purpose of carrying this act into effect.

The Governor and Council were authorized to appoint a suitable person to repair to Washington, to communicate with the President of the United States on the measures of defence necessary to be adopted for the protection of the State: and to assure the President that this State is ever ready to put forth its whole strength in obedience to the laws and the Constitution, and is ever ready to co-operate with the general government in all the necessary measures of defence. [In execution of this act, NATHANIEL SEARLE, jun. Esq. was appointed, and left Providence on Thursday last, to proceed forthwith to the seat of government.]

Resolutions from the States of Pennsylvania and Tennessee, proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States to reduce the term for which the Senators are elected to three years, were unanimously rejected.

An act of incorporation was granted to Oziel Wilkinson and others, for the purpose of erecting a bridge over Pawtucket Falls, at the place where the present bridge stands. It is to be supported by toll.

The Legislature will convene in Providence, on the last Monday in October next.

[illegible] of the Enemy at Wareham.

[illegible] have been furnished with a state[illegible] of the wanton and disgraceful [illegible] of the enemy at Wareham, sign[illegible] sight of the most respectable in[illegible] of that place.—It would seem [illegible] Submission does not always [illegible] safety.—They state,

"That on the 13th of June, about [illegible] o'clock A. They then landed a part of [illegible] men, and in violation of their [illegible], proceeded to destroy pri[illegible] property, by setting fire to a vessel [illegible] the stocks, and five others which [illegible] at anchor, and a Plymouth vessel, [illegible] also to a Cotton Manufactory.—[illegible] were reminded of their agreement, [illegible] were told that they had taken the [illegible] of us by false promises.—[illegible] threatened to set fire to the village [illegible] the inhabitants to the sword, if [illegible] resistance was made, or any at[illegible] made to put out the fires; they [illegible] they did not care about any pro[illegible] they had made.—They then [illegible] to their barges, and took 12 [illegible] the inhabitants with them, and [illegible] they were fired upon, they [illegible] put them to death.—The com[illegible] officer ordered the flag of [illegible] to be again hoisted, but the se[illegible] in command swore, that it was a [illegible] shame, and a disgrace to any na[illegible], to enter a village under a flag of [illegible], and commit the greatest outrages [illegible] depredations possible, and then to [illegible] under a flag of truce;—but on [illegible] being again given by the com[illegible] officer, the flag was hoisted.—Our men were landed about three miles below the village, and the barges proceeded on board the brig Nimrod, then lying in the bay."

CONGRESSIONAL CANDIDATES

Our present worthy Representatives, ELISHA R. POTTER and RICHARD JACKSON, Esq'rs. having declined to stand candidates for a re-election to Congress, JOHN L. BOSS, jun. and JAMES B. MASON, Esquires, will be supported by the Federal-Republicans. The election will take place on the last Tuesday of August next.

Fourth of July.—Preparations are making in almost every part of the country for the appropriate celebration of the ensuing anniversary of our Nation's Birth-Day.—It is a day dear to every American. It recalls to his mind the "times that tried men's souls"—when the chain of foreign oppression was broken, and our nation made free, sovereign and independent. It should, says one of our revolutionary patriots, be celebrated with "pomp, show, bombs, bonfires and illuminations, from one end of the continent to the other, forever."

At one of the late attempts to launch the 74 gun ship at Charlestown, a carpenter, by the name of Champney, was unfortunately killed. The next day after this took place, a subscription paper was handed about in the Navy-Yard, and in the Insurance Offices in Boston, and upwards of 3000 dollars raised for the bereaved wife and family of the deceased. This, with those who are acquainted with the generosity and public spirit of Bostonians, may be emphatically called "Federalism of the Boston Stamp!"

The War on the Coast.—Under our mail head we have a number of articles of intelligence on this subject. It appears that the war in the Chesapeake and its waters, as well as on the coast of the eastern States, is daily assuming a more spirited and rigorous character.

British Frigate Leander. This Frigate, which has lately arrived at Halifax on her way to our Coast, mounts, it is said, ten more guns than any Frigate in our Navy; and has on board a complement of five hundred men. She has been lately built in England, for the purpose of capturing American Frigates, and thus redeeming the British Naval character.

Blind Attachment to France.

Now the great contest in Europe is over, it is time for Americans to turn their attention more particularly to their own situation, and endeavor to ascertain how their interest has been promoted by seeking an alliance with the fallen tyrant of France. Year after year has he been solicited to listen to the claims of justice; and although our petitions, humble in their style, were treated with the most mortifying neglect, it never once seemed to ruffle the feelings of our administration, much less excite their resentment. Co-operating as they were in the same cause, and urged on by the same motives of ambition, every failure of the one always appeared to be sincerely regretted by the other, until the fortunes of Bonaparte had left in the bosom of our rulers, no room for hope. While the whole civilized world has been combined for the attainment and preservation of its liberties, against a power more terrible than was ever before arrayed in pursuit of military fame, and a despot more unprincipled than Deity ever suffered to scourge mankind—our country alone has continued faithful to his interests, and aided him in his unholy career. Mortifying, indeed, is the reflection to a great portion of the American people, yet not having the keys of the national treasury, nor offices to bestow, they never have been able by the force of argument, or the exhibition of truth, to convince their infatuated brethren of the impolicy of such a connexion. Reason, when opposed to headstrong passions and prejudices, is weak; and these, it must be acknowledged, are the agents which have caused our unpleasant and truly awkward situation. Our war has continued two years, and unless we are greatly deceived, it would perplex the most strenuous of its advocates to point out the advantages which have resulted from the measure. If disasters and disgrace, an immense national debt, and useless expenditure of money, the effusion of blood, discouragement to enterprize, destruction of trade, burthensome exactions, and loss of millions of property, may be enumerated among its advantages, we have indeed experienced them in a very eminent degree. We may be told, that the war has established our naval character, and that the harvest of laurels gathered from the ocean, has been far more abundant than was expected; yet what is this in comparison with the manifest injury the country has sustained? This, however, is a subject which democracy should lightly touch, for against a naval establishment all its force was directed until experiments had proved its utility, and it had crushed all opposition, by the splendor of its achievements. Our rulers in their political conduct, have been governed by principles which can never be reconciled to either the standard of consistency or propriety, and their warmest supporters may prepare their minds to see them accept a treaty less advantageous, and less honorable, than the one formerly concluded by Messrs. Monroe and Pinkney. On all the points in controversy, they concluded an arrangement which they deemed highly advantageous and honorable to the nation. This, however, was rejected by the President, without the formality of submitting it to the inspection of his constitutional advisers. Could they obtain an abandonment of those principles, on the part of the British, for which they have been contending, then they might have some cause to exult; but we venture to predict that a treaty will be concluded without this abandonment. What excuse will then be conjured up by our democrats for their President—What arguments will they then invent in justification of this war? A few months will more fully disclose the correctness of federal predictions, and the fallacy of those principles which have hurried our country into an ocean of troubles. Should the friends of Napoleon and Madison be convinced that a connexion prejudicial to their country, has existed between them, and that we [illegible]

[illegible] Argus, however, argues up the [illegible] that [illegible] will be soon induced to betake the other side. Could this event take place, we might then expect to see happiness once more restored to our distressed country.

BY LAST EVENING'S MAIL.

BOSTON, JULY 1.

From the Northern Frontier.

Our information is to [illegible] last, at which time the advance [illegible] the American and British armies [illegible] still in sight of each other near Odletown. A battle continued to be daily expected. Reinforcements for our army had arrived at Plattsburgh and Burlington.

We have received the following information from our obliging correspondent, dated Plattsburg, June 23:

"On Tuesday last, Col. Forsyth, with a detachment of 60 riflemen went over the lines to Capt. Odell's. The enemy advanced upon him with about 200 men, and but for the rapidity of his retreat, would have cut him off. He retired to a house about half a mile this side the lines—into this house he threw a detachment of his men, and placed the others about the house, and gave the enemy battle. The contest was kept up for some time, when the British retreated. Of the Colonel's men, two were killed and 3 wounded. The enemy lost many more. Deserters who have come in since, say they had 3 killed and 8 wounded.

"Several deserters have arrived at this place yesterday and to-day—they say the enemy have 5000 men in the vicinity of La Cole, Isle aux Noix, &c.

"Our fleet remains at the lines. Capt. Brooks, of the artillery, has been ordered to Cumberland head with a detachment of men and 4 heavy pieces, and is throwing up some defences there—it is said this is a measure of precaution merely, in case our fleet should be unfortunate, to protect them, &c."

FROM CANADA.

We were last evening favoured with Quebec Papers of the 23d ult. and Montreal papers of the 25th.

QUEBEC, JUNE 19.

The 90th Regt. expected here in the course of to-morrow, consists of 1402 souls—but only six sick. Col. Mc'Nair states that he can bring into the field 1050 bayonets.

Mr. Ainslie, a passenger in the fleet, states that Col. Grant, and the remainder of the 70th Regt. about 400 fine fellows, are at No. 6.

JUNE 23.

The 90th Regt. excepting a few invalids, is gone up the River in the Transports. The wind being now fair, they will reach Montreal to day.

We may daily expect to hear of the arrival of British troops from France on the coast of America.

At the latest dates from Lake Ontario the British Squadron had again sailed from Kingston. The American squadron had not then made its appearance on the Lake.

Admiral Sir Isaac Coffin arrived at Quebec on the 20th, in the ship Ewretta, which left England May 2. [It is probable he is to command the Ontario squadron, in the room of Com. Yeo, who may be second in command, or be transferred to the fleet on Lake Champlain.

NEW-YORK, JUNE 29.

Loss of the Torpedo Boat.

A gentleman who arrived here last evening from Sag Harbor, informed us, that on Thursday last the Torpedo Boat was run ashore at Horton's Point, opposite Faulkner's Island, and on Sunday she was destroyed by the Sylph sloop of war, and a frigate. One man in attempting to swim ashore from the Torpedo was drowned, the others made their escape. The cable of the Torpedo was cut, for the purpose of saving the man who attempted to swim ashore, which was the cause of her getting ashore. It was also reported, that four men belonging to the barges were killed by the Sag Harbor militia.

Gen. Wilkinson has arrived at Baltimore.

THE CORSAIR.

[illegible] the remainder from the following extract is made.—The Scene lies in the Dardanelles, [illegible] of the Pasha Seyd, [illegible] set off in the morning with [illegible] to destroy [illegible] Corsair" and his band—The time is past midnight.

WITH obeisant reverence from the outer gate,
[illegible] the slave, whose office there [illegible] wait,
Bows his bent head, his hand salutes the floor,
[illegible] the trusted vizier's [illegible]
"A captive Dervise, from the pirate's nest
Escaped, is here—himself would tell the rest."
He took the sign from Seyd's unsleeping eye,
And led the holy man in silence nigh.
His strip were folded on his dark green vest,
His steps were feeble and his looks depress'd;
Yet were he seem'd of hardship more than years,
And pale his cheek with penance, not from fears;
Vow'd to his God, his sable locks he wore,
And these his lofty cap rose proudly o'er;
Around his form, his loose long robe was thrown
And wrapt a breast bestow'd on heaven alone;
Submissive, yet with self-possession mann'd,
He calmly met the curious eyes that scann'd,
Till question of his coming, sin would seek,
Ere the Pacha's will allowed to speak.
"Whence com'st thou Dervise?"
"From the outlaw's den
"A fugitive"—
"Thy capture, where and when?"
"From Scalanova's port to Scio's isle,
"The dalk was bound, but Alla did not smile
"Upon our spoils, &c."

He then gives an account of his capture and escape; after which he solicits leave to retire.

"One question answer, then in peace depart,
"How many?—Hal it cannot sure be day!
"What star, what sun is bursting on the bay?
"It shines a blaze of fire! away—away!
"No! treachery! my guards! my scimitar!
"The galleys feed the flames—and I afar!
"Accursed dervise! these thy tidings—thou
"Some villian spy—seize—cleave him—slay him now!"

[illegible] the Dervise, with that burst of light,
Per[illegible] his change of form appall'd the sight:
Up rose the Dervise—not in saintly garb,
But like a warrior bounding from his barb,
Dash'd his high cap and tore his robe away—
Bare his mail'd breast, and flash'd his sabre's ray,
His close but glittering casque, and sable plume,
Mere glittering eye, and black brow's sabler gloom,
Glar'd on the Moslems' eyes some Afrit sprite,
Whose demon death-blow left no hope for fight.
The wild confusion and the swarthy glow
Of flames on high and torches from below,
The shriek of terror and the mingling yell—
The swords began to clash and shouts to swell;
Flung o'er that spot of earth the air of hell!

Soda Water Establishment

Noel Pelecan,

HAS the pleasure of announcing to the Ladies and Gentlemen of the Town of Newport and its vicinity, that they may be constantly supplied at his Store, No 154 Thames-Street, Newport, with the first quality SODA WATER, commencing on Sunday, the 11th instant, manufactured by Mr. Joseph Cass, upon the most correct chemical principles. The beneficial effects of this salutiferous Water, have, for the last two years greatly augmented the demand for it: which at the same time through want of care and proper attention and a variety of circumstances, its value has been depreciating in this town. The experience of many and having established the extensive utility of SODA WATER. The Proprietor having the most convenient accommodation for Ladies and Gentlemen, he flatters himself that he will receive a share of public support, to enable him to prosecute, with success, his establishment.

This pungent and acidulated Water has been directed by Medical men and is well known to produce desirable effects, in many common and troublesome complaints, it is a complete remedy against sourness of the stomach, commonly called heart burn, and in cases of indigestion and weakness of the stomach it is found very useful, gradually restoring the appetite and with it the tone of the organs; it is a preventative of many of the diseases of the stomach and bowels which proceed from acidity; and for the same reasons it in most cases removes or prevents the sick head ache; it has proved advantageous in the gout, as those who have taken the Water for the gravel, have been cured of both diseases, by means of Soda.—It may be taken to the quantity of a pint, or more daily, at three stated periods, morning, noon, and night, one hour previously to the several meals of the day. In addition to its Medical qualities, it is a very refreshing and grateful drink, especially after heat and fatigue, and may be made a complete substitute for beverage of a deliterious nature; with Wines and Sugar, it is very grateful.
